This is not an IT techy site. Nor, come to that, am I much of an IT techy. Well, only a bit. But for the bloggers amongst the readers (and there are some) I thought I'd mention a great bit of software I've come across and on which I am now writing my entries.

It's called Zoundry. It's free (near enough). It's reliable, easy to use, intuitive, fast to set up and beats anything else I've tried. So I thought it worth sharing the tip.

Get it at <http://www.zoundry.com/index.html> and ignore all its says about product endorsements. Of course that's how they make their money. It works just fine without them.
