

Jersey law falls apart - you have been warned

Senator Stuart Syvret of Jersey and I have had what might be called a difficult relationship. I wrote a lot of material for him for a number of years. Then he tried to turn Jersey law on me when I said so.

But now he has been the subject of an abuse of Jersey law - and had his house raided without a warrant by Jersey police acting on what appears to be a whim of senior politicians / law officers / civil servants in that supposedly well regulated island (where the boundaries between who is responsible for what are almost non-existent).

And what this proves is that the rule of law has ended in Jersey. The hierarchies word is all there is.

If you have a trust, bank account, or assets there be very worried. You're now in bandit country.

As I've always said.
