

Where's the room for the critics IASB?

I gather the International Accounting Standards Board is looking for a couple of investment professionals - perhaps banking analysts - who might advise their Financial Instruments Global Resources Group as part of the IAS 39 review.

Why banking analysts?

Why ask the Big 4 for nominations — as seems to have happened?

Why not ask those from outside the inner sanctum of accounting / the City; who have opinion on this issue?

It really is time the IASB smelt the coffee and opened itself up to broader opinion.
