Offshore Asset Protection BLOG - Bob Bauman: He's Baaaaaack! Levinism Redux.

Give Bob Bauman of the Sovereign Society credit for one thing: he did not take long to react to Carl Levin's speech last night.

Of course, all he says is wrong - but Bob's that sort of guy.

Then note how he ends:

Learn the solutions at the Sovereign Society's 3rd Annual Offshore Advantage Seminar: A Beginner's Guide to the Offshore World, November 4, 2009 — November 7, 2009, at the Westin, Los Cabos, Mexico. Twenty-one of the world's most respected offshore masterminds -- with over 325 years of collective knowledge in private offshore banking, global investments, and asset protection - will assemble in Los Cabos for four days of closed-door mastermind meetings. A select group will be given a rare "insider's look" as these experts reveal their time-tested strategies for protecting privacy and capital in today's volatile markets, economy and new era of populist politics.

I've got a suggestion for Carl Levin: why not use your Senate powers to investigate the Sovereign Society, the Cato Institute, the Center for Freedom and Prosperity and their other friends to find out who funds the abuse they promulgate and whether that 'behind closed doors' session is promoting tax compliance?
