FT.com / UK - City analysis reignites Osborne tax row.

Vince Cable, the Liberal Democrat Treasury spokesman, mounted a withering critique of Mr Osborne as part of a "team of young things whose life-time experience of business management is confined to the [elitist Oxford] Bullingdon Club bar account".

Careful Vince - you forget they were too drunk to remember, and ran up the bills on the basis of a bottomless pit of Daddy's money.

I think you're just being too kind Vince. The reality is Osborne has experience of nothing at all.
