

Half term

It's half term next week

And I've promised my sons I will be a dutiful child minder for the week

Which will make it hard to do much blogging

And that will mean I will have even less time for managing comments

So, can I suggest that next week is the not the week to comment — as it might 1) take ages to come up and 2) if I don't have time to reply, as is my usual habit, it might just not appear at all?

With no apologies — sometimes there are definitely more important things in my life than this blog, however much I enjoy it.
