Britain must raise taxes by £26bn a year to repair the economy, accountants warn - Times Online.

PWC want tax increases, service cuts and don't give a damn that recession might turn into depression as a result.

Why should they? They're all right. So why worry about all those who might suffer from VAT increases, NIC increases and income tax increases whilst losing vital services? PWC don't need the latter, and know how to avoid the former.
