Island must change its image as a 'tax haven' - Isle of Man Today.

No, I didn't say that - the local finance sector did - which suggests they must be listening. Perhaps my contributing to their losing 24% of their state income has made them sit up and notice. Whatever, it's reported:

WE need to change the international perception of the Isle of Man as a tax haven and build personal relationships if we are to secure future fiscal stability.
Read the rest of the report: the above apart they're still clearly living out a fantasy that can't last for long. Like Jersey, bankruptcy beckons.
