I note this blog has been listed on politics.co.uk. They say:

Information:

For someone representing the majority of Brits, understanding the true intricacies of tax has always been a challenge.

That's why Richard Murphy is so useful, and why his blog provides a window into the important world of tax policy.

Don't be deceived by the endless numbers which tax might promise - the relative lack of them on this blog is testament to the ability with which Richard keeps his subject interesting.

Biography:

This blog is run by Richard Murphy on behalf of Tax Research LLP.

Since 2000 Richard has been increasingly involved in taxation policy issues.

He is a founder of the Tax Justice Network and director of Tax Research LLP which undertakes work on taxation policy for a wide range of clients including governments, government agencies, commercial organisations, aid agencies and pressure groups in the UK and abroad.

Rating:

A quick check seems to indicate that's a good score. Happy with that!
