

Money 1: People 0

Published: January 13, 2026, 6:26 am

---

EU financial crisis - live blog | Business | guardian.co.uk.

There's gushing enthusiasm for the Euro bail out:

With an hour to go until trading begins on Wall Street, investors are expecting a very healthy start. The futures market indicates that the Dow Jones index will jump 3.4% (to around 10,685 points) while the S&P 500 could rise over 4.2% at the open.

European markets are still on track to record strong gains today, with the FTSE 100 up 4.6% at 5359 (a rise of 236 points), the German Dax is 4.7% higher, while the French CAC is having the best performance of the major indices - up 8.3%.

So the wealthy are to get their state subsidy.

But any mention of saving the agony of the Greek people who are going to suffer cuts likely to drive democracy from their country?

Not a bit.

Sickening.