The BBC has covered the growing threat to the 'fulfilment' industry in the Islands - an industry that exists solely to exploit VAT tax avoidance.

The BBC news programme can be seen here.

The biggest joke is Jersey's Economic Development Minister saying Jersey cannot be used to abuse another country's tax regime. That is absurd. That is the basis of the entire economy of the island. Doesn't he realise quite absurd his comment he was? Or is Jersey really so blind to the reality of the abuse it facilitates?
