The House of Commons Public Accounts Committee has been looking at the management of H M Revenue & Customs - and rightly so.

As they note, and Private Eye report, 22 companies in the UK are disputing tax of more than £250 million each - a total sum of £14.9 billion.

And you want to tell me that the tax gap is not as big as I estimate - at £12 billion a year in total for UK corporates?

Sorry, but all the evidence stacks in my direction.
