

Will those who helped Mubarak stash his money in London..

If, as now seems to be the case, it is recognised that Mubarak and his friends stashed their money illegally in London are those who helped them do it - the lawyers and the banks in particular - going to be investigated under money laundering legislation? Are their cases at the very least going to be investigated (I stress - I am not pre-judging things)? And if not, why not?

When will we know?

Where's the DPP on this?

And SOCA?

Shouldn't we know?

Shouldn't the people of Egypt know?

Shouldn't the rulers of other states know?
