

Press coverage for the Tax Justice Network report on th...

Published: January 14, 2026, 7:31 am

The serious press has picked up and covered the Tax Justice Network's new report on the flaws in the UK - Swiss tax deal.

The following are some highlights:

Swiss-U.K. Tax Agreement May Be 'Revenue-Negative,' Group Says

Bloomberg - Leigh Baldwin - â€Ź7 hours agoâ€Ź Switzerland's decision to impose withholding duties on untaxed British funds may generate only a “fraction” of anticipated revenue, the Tax Justice Network said.

Swiss tax deal could end up costing UK

The Guardian (blog) - â€Ź7 hours agoâ€Ź The UK's tax agreement with Switzerland will not bring in as much revenue as expected, critics say. Britain's controversial tax deal with the Swiss government will raise considerably less than claimed

'Fatal flaws' in UK-Swiss tax deal attacked

Financial Times - Vanessa Houlder - â€Ź11 hours agoâ€Ź Campaigners are stepping up their attack on a newly signed tax deal struck with Switzerland, which they say is subject to a series of “fatal flaws” that will give evaders a cost-free means of maintaining their anonymity.

Revealed: Loopholes in Swiss tax deal mean £7bn windfall could be lost

Bureau of Investigative Journalism - Nick Mathiason - â€Ź7 hours agoâ€Ź An agreement between the UK and Swiss governments, which beleaguered permanent secretary for tax Dave Hartnett has stated will raise between £4bn — £7bn, is so fundamentally flawed it could actually lose the UK tax revenue.