I am this morning putting the finishing touches to my new book, written over Christmas. This is the cover:

The book will be published on 10 February by Vintage, a part of Random House, as part of its Brain Shots series.

The aim of the book is to really explain what these companies have done, which to date has not happened. That's important, of course.

More important is suggesting what we can do about it. Expect some elaboration of this list.
