

Is Labour going to change the economic model?

Published: January 20, 2026, 9:25 am

I thought this worth noting from an article in the Guardian this afternoon by Tristram Hunt MP:

[T]here is only so much you can do to improve the conditions of working people without also changing the underlying structure of the economic model itself.

I await with bated breath for Labour's plans to change the economic model. There has, to date, been far too little sign of it.