

Comments - boringly, and yet again

Published: January 13, 2026, 4:54 pm

I try to be generous on the comments policy on this blog.

But right now my generosity is being abused and the comments space is beginning to look like the absurdity that is Comment is Free.

This wastes my time and effort and right now I am short of time.

So please be on notice that all comments apart from those from those I know and who can be trusted to constructively inform debate will be deleted for a while, probably wholly unread.

When the choice is between running the blog or not because of comments then comments always have to go, and candidly I am utterly bored by much of the neoliberal commentary being offered here right now as I am sure most of my readers are and when that saps my enthusiasm for the blog I always know the time for action has arrived.