Looking at the year ahead and the range of work that needs to be done on tax justice issues I have a feeling I may be giving less attention to the economy as a whole than in the last year or so. That said, I couldn't help but muse on the economic outlook for 2014. You'll gather from what follows that I am not too optimistic. Click on the image for a bigger version if it's too small on what you're reading it on:

The only thing I can guarantee about that list is that it's wrong. All economic forecasts are. But I think the tone is right.
