

Danny Alexander misses the mark

Published: January 13, 2026, 6:37 am

Danny Alexander has announced a review of business rates to report in 2016. That's a touch optimistic of him: by then I suspect he will have forgotten what Westminster looks like, but that's not my reason for mentioning this review.

My question is how can such a review be started without land value taxation being explicitly mentioned?

The ever-present ability of politicians to miss the point is all too apparent here.