

Peace and quiet

Published: January 14, 2026, 6:30 pm

It's half term and I am taking a break. In the proverbial language of politicians, I want to spend time with my family.

The blog will suffer as a result, although I suspect not completely: writing this thing is a bit like breathing for me.

I am not turning comments off but if it takes some time for moderation to take place, please do understand.

And if your comment isn't strictly necessary might you give it a miss? That will give me more time for birdwatching, drinking tea and even going to the pub.

Thanks.