

A note of thanks to my commentators

The number of comments on the blog is very high right now. I read them all. Apart from a few batches of comments from regular trolls everything is getting on because the quality of comment is high. I appreciate test: it makes my time spent moderating worthwhile.

However, I also realise sentiment is high between those who may otherwise agree with each other. Can we keep things calm, please? This debate has a long way to go as yet and I would like to keep valuable opinion on the site if possible.

Thanks to all involved.
