

Will the USA be on the new OECD tax haven blacklist?

Published: January 13, 2026, 7:48 am

The OECD is presenting its new criteria for states to be considered cooperative in tackling tax abuse to the G20 today.

As far as I can see the USA might be considered uncooperative.

So might Israel.

And maybe Turkey.

Whilst St Lucia looks like it may have a tough time too, alongside Nauru and one or two others like it.

But Panama may be OK.

This could be interesting: I wait to see how this will be dressed up.