

Tory false promises

Published: January 15, 2026, 9:00 pm

This comes from the Guardian this morning and says better than I could what I intended to put in a blog:

To describe the Tories as con-artists is to be too kind.

They know workplace rights are now effectively unenforceable for most people because of fees they have imposed and then they talk about supposedly extending those rights whilst leaving all the impediments in place.

I wish people would get very angry.