

The April Taxcast

Published: January 13, 2026, 11:49 pm

---

In this month's Tax Justice Network Taxcast: Tax justice, women and UN human rights conventions: how we may be beginning to hold governments to account. Also:

- * we discuss scandal-hit Facebook's checks on whether overseas influencers are funding political ads in the United States and why they won't work. And is it time for a new model? How Mark Zuckerberg could become a hero.
- * Norway does the responsible thing and decides not to invest its sovereign wealth fund in private equity.
- * And India's decade-long battle to collect back taxes from Vodafone runs into potential conflicts of interest at the highest political levels.

Produced and presented by Naomi Fowler, featuring Liz Nelson and John Christensen of the Tax Justice Network and lawyers and members of the United Nations Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) Patricia Schultz and Marion Bethel.

Tax justice and women's rights in CEDAW committee hearings:

I think it has come as a surprise for a number of countries with whom we have tackled those fairly new issues. I don't think that any government a few years ago would have thought that they would be asked questions on such issues."

Lawyer and CEDAW committee member Patricia Schultz

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=pqIF4i9dT6Y?version=3&rel=1&fs=1&autoplay=2&showsearch=0&showinfo=1&iv\_load\_policy=1&wmode=transparent

