

The more radical end of accounting

I was reading the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales' Economia magazine this evening (as one does whilst cooking supper on a bank holiday evening) and noticed their '2017 in numbers' feature.

They claimed that in 2017 they had 1,112, 463 unique users of the Economia site on 1,368 posts

That set me wondering. I looked at my data. I had 1,754,061 such users on 1,259 posts. And I have a suspicion that my budget's smaller, by a bit.

But that set me thinking. Maybe they need to get some people to write about the more radical end of accounting for them. I could suggest a few.
