

My country

My country?
What does that mean?

Which country?
When it does not know?

The one of my birth?
Or the one of my forebears?

And which of them?
For they are not from one place.

The country on my passport?
Or the one in which I live?

The union in which it is said I live?
But of which most seem unaware?

Or the real, divided and oppressive state?
That governs against the will of so many?

My country?
What is real?

My country?
What do I want?

My country?
That should unite

My country?
Of which to be proud?

My country?
That I do not know

My country?
The place to which I aspire

My country?
That might never be

My country?
That I want to share

Our country
