

Funding the Future

No wonder we're in a mess on the â€˜red linesâ€¢?...

It's just worth remembering in these febrile days when a lot of claims are being made just what the 2016 re

Referendum on the United Kingdom's membership of the European Union
Vote only once by putting a cross <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> in the box next to your choice
Should the United Kingdom remain a member of the European Union or leave the European Union?
Remain a member of the European Union	<input type="checkbox"/>
Leave the European Union	<input type="checkbox"/>

Can you spot anything on WTO rules?

Or migration?

Or freedom of movement more broadly?

Or customs unions?

Norway?

Canada?

Or authorisation to break other agreements?

No. Neither can I.

And anyone who claims that anything was said on any such issue at the time is simply lying.

And I think we do have a right to point that out.

The vote was to leave the EU.

No one said what that meant.

Or when it would happen.

And what would happen next.

No wonder we're in a mess.

And my point is a simple one. The so-called 'red lines' are not based on the referendum result. And they do not respect the 'will of the people'.

May is simply not telling the truth when she says that they do.
