

Special places in hell

We now know that Donald Tusk thinks there is a special place reserved in hell for Brexiteers.

I wholly understand his sentiment.

And let's assume for now that hell is here on earth, if you think it nowhere else.

Is this special place really reserved just for Brexiteers?

Or might the proponents of austerity, climate change deniers, those who discriminate against others and the opponents of tax justice who support growing world inequality also have special places reserved for them?

I could not help but ask.
