The Tax Justice Network has an infographic on its blog about its work and a new funding scheme it is launching. I wish it well.

One part of the infographic is this:

The story is true. But I was paid nothing as the creator of country-by-country reporting.

I fully admit that I could not have made it happen: it took many others in many organisations, including Tax Justice Network, to make that happen. And I am delighted by the rate of return, however approximate the measures. The couple of days it took in 2003 to get this ball rolling were time well expended.
