Research by the the group called Green New Deal UK (which is not same as the one I am involved in) has reported that people in this country are just about in favour of a universal basic income now, but are much more strongly inclined to back a government backed job guarantee, of which more than 70% apparently approve.

So, the question of the day is, which should it be? A UBI, or a JG?

Or a mix of the two?

Or neither?

The floor is yours.....
