I am not sure I can add much to this tweet:

How is it HMRC can play make believe for the wealthy but show so little understanding to others?

Of course the rule of law does need to be upheld, but with sensitivity.

Cases like this, which simply evidence that a blind eye is being turned to tax owed by the wealthiest, really do not help HMRC's case. When it claimed that it is an even-handed institution. The overwhelming evidence is that it is not.
