My next video that introduces themes I will address in my YouTube channel is out this morning. This time I talk about the Green New Deal:

The timing is good: this is what Rishi Sunak should be offering today, but be under no illusion: the complete transformation in thinking that it demands is a long way from Rishi Sunak's mind. Green remains a 'tack-on' extra for this government when it has to be at the very core of its thinking.

That's why 12 years after I, and others, created the Green New Deal this remains an issue to discuss, and a campaign to be pursued.

On Friday we make a pile more videos. Please let me know if there are any topical issues that you want addressed. One or two will address such themes.

The rest of the videos are available on the channel page, here.
