I can imagine sometime soon trailing through the wreckage of an economy that once was

And saying "Whatever happened to the country I once knew and to the people who lived in it?"

To which the reply won't be Covid or Brexit but will be greed, incompetence, and indifference

'The advent of a world in which human beings shall enjoy freedom of speech and belief and freedom from fear and want has been proclaimed as the highest aspiration of the common people'. That's the UN Charter of Human Rights. Compare to populist politics. Then mourn for our loss.

Rishi Sunak appears to have the perverse belief that out of the wreckage of the economy that his econocide will deliver there will emerge a new, brighter, capitalist future. But who will risk starting a business now when it's clear the government is wilfully killing so many?
