Replying to @ActuaryByDay

Dr Julian Tang, Honorary Associate Professor in Respiratory Sciences, @uniofleicester, said:

"... I cannot see how they will achieve this 'Focused Protection' for these vulnerable groups in any practical, reliable or safe way."

Dr Rupert Beale, Group Leader, Cell Biology of Infection Laboratory, Francis Crick Institute @TheCrick, said:

"This is wishful thinking. ... lasting protection of vulnerable individuals by establishing 'herd immunity' is very unlikely to be achieved in the absence of a vaccine."

Dr Simon Clarke, Associate Professor of Cellular Microbiology at @UniofReading, said:

"we don't know that herd immunity is even possible... consign a great many more thousands of people to their deaths, and many more would be left suffering from the effects of long covid..."
