

Suggestions, please

As is I suspect apparent, I have begun winding down for Christmas. I did not intend to do so as early as this, but it occurred to me that I was exhausted. So it makes sense to wind down before Christmas and then work afterwards, if I feel like it.

I suspect I will feel like it, as I almost invariably find the time between Christmas and New Year an occasion to explore new ideas. This year I know that I am quite keen to explore e-book production. So a quick request, if I might. Has anyone who has actually tried doing such a thing got any suggestions on e-book software that a) works, b) has not too steep a learning curve, c) has a good range of templates and d) is reasonably priced. Free is not essential.

In the meantime, sporadic blogging will continue, but moderation delays might reflect the fact that I am taking time off.
