As those who watch my videos will know, they have shifted from studio to home production of late. Overall, comments suggest that this new format is preferred to the old one. So I have decided to invest in the new format, using donations made to fund the process. This has just arrived:

I can imagine what the rest of today is going to be lost to.

Reviews suggest that this is the best vlogging (video blogging) camera currently available at anything like a reasonable price. But it looks like I have a lot to learn.
