

Funding the Future

That seemed to go OK

Published: January 12, 2026, 11:21 pm

Reaction to my talk for Keele from the organizers, at least, seemed to be pretty good:

Keele World Affairs @KeeleWorldA4rs · 9h
Where to start with the summary for tonight's excellent talk? A huge thank you to Prof @RichardJMurphy for making economics more understandable, as well as giving it a human face...
...

Keele World Affairs @KeeleWorldA4rs · 9h
.....must check out the Exchequer & Audit Dept Act 1866 (hope that's correct title @RichardJMurphy)it's a revelation!
...

Keele World Affairs @KeeleWorldA4rs · 9h
Then moving on to; tax justice, the undertaking of wealth, to create a vibrant economy we need to increase the wealth of the poor (@KeeleInclusion @SPGSKeele), changes to allowances & reliefs, redistribution of income...
...

Keele World Affairs @KeeleWorldA4rs · 9h
And more...then Q&A - inflation, savings (inc social duty/function of govt), QE & house prices, QE & inequality, developing countries debt and how to help (@KeelePolsIR), Education & need for change, crypto currencies, big business & tax, tax evasion & tax avoidance, tax havens
...

Keele World Affairs @KeeleWorldA4rs · 9h
...UBI and finallythe Scandinavian system....
...

Keele World Affairs @KeeleWorldA4rs · 9h
This thread has not done Prof Murphy justice, you'll be able to judge for yourselves when his talk is uploaded to our archive.....can't wait!
...

What I have seen from the audience comments - and there were, apparently 623 present, also sounds pretty good.

It was unfortunate that a couple of my trolls turned up to seek to close down free speech amongst the commentators. There was much-annoyed reaction to their fascist attempts to close down free speech.

But although this was annoying, the key takeaway was a simple one, and that is that people want and appreciate an explanation for what is really happening in our economy. I hope that I what I offered.