

Funding the Future

Article URL

Published: January 12, 2026, 7:40 pm

The first of my regular columns in The National in Scotland is out. In it I argue:

Scotland needs to generate well over 100% renewable power compared to current consumption most of the time in the future. That's because this ability to generate low emission energy is the basis for Scotland's prosperity in the years to come.

The rest is here.