

Funding the Future

Sunak's approach to NHS funding is completely wrong bec..

Published: January 13, 2026, 12:12 pm

I posted this Twitter thread last night:

Richard Murphy @RichardJMurphy · 11h ...
Millions of people want to lend billions of pounds to the government. And the government has created hundreds of billions of new money without ever delivering inflation. In other words, this government can access all the money it needs to fund the NHS right now 1/4

22 700 1.4K

Richard Murphy @RichardJMurphy · 11h ...
No new taxes are required. No cuts are required anywhere. But despite that Rishi Sunak wants to cut funding for the #NHS. That's despite record ever waiting lists and a Covid crisis that is rapidly getting worse. 2/4

3 161 414

Richard Murphy @RichardJMurphy · 11h ...
There is a question everyone needs to ask Rishi Sunak, which is why do you want people to suffer and die this winter, wholly unnecessarily when there is no shortage of funds to treat people, and there are staff ready and available to help them? 3/4

4 166 464

Richard Murphy @RichardJMurphy · 12h ...
If Sunak gets his way people will die because he wants to pretend people must die to balance a government's books - which is something the Tories have only just about managed to do 3 times since World War 2. What is this callous and dogmatic indifference to need about? 4/4

5 180 428

Monday 20 August 2021 50p Republic of Ireland €1.00 No 5106 £3.50

Bank Holiday Blowout
50 things to do before the end of summer (come rain or shine)

The Sunday Telegraph

Britain out of Afghanistan

Last troops depart after 20 years, as evacuations finish and PM promises to honour the sacrifices of those who fell

