

Taxing multi-millionaires

Regular readers will have noted that videos have been absent for a few weeks. I can only offer one explanation, which is that I was not finding the right ideas to make ones I wanted to share.

This, however, will change soon. In response to a request I have sketched out a whole series of videos to make about taxing multi-millionaires. Starting from why we need to tax the wealthy more, to why this group get a relative free-ride now, I will then explore a whole range of tax measures that are required to create a more equitable tax system, before exploring the conditions required to make that work.

Recording literally starts this morning. I hope to start publishing these next week - but the whole series may take a month or more to deliver.

The aim is simple: this is an explanation of where the UK tax system has to go if we are to have social justice in the UK.
