

This morning

If anyone is wondering why there are no blogs so far today the answer is straightforward.

I heard yet another government minister telling a journalist (Kay Burley this time) earlier this morning that we 'must repay the Covid debt'.

This is complete nonsense. I am working on a Twitter thread that will also appear here to explain why. Sometimes these things take a little while, but it seems like the best use of my time this morning.

So, I will get back to the blog, but later on.
