There's a comment been made on the blog suggesting that all markets are anti-social. It was made in response to my blog from this morning where I said I was in favour of the existence of markets.

In this video I argue that we can have fair markets - but it's all down to political choice, just as it is a political choice that right now we have rigged ones.

The video is a bit experimental and not made in my usual fashion. I'd be interested to know if these quick reaction videos have merit.
