

Funding the Future

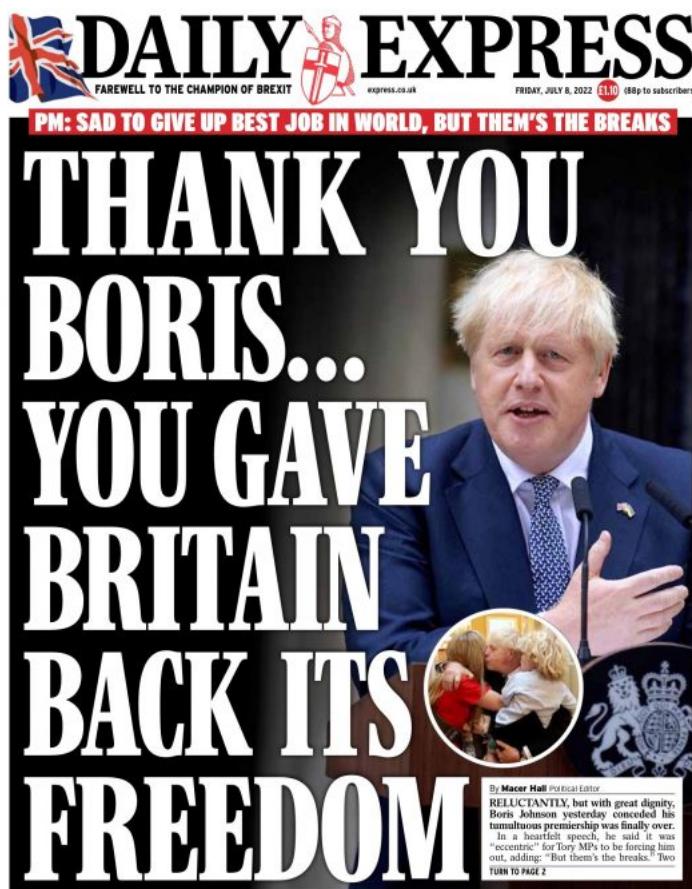

Fascists don't give up, and Johnson has not gone yet

Published: January 14, 2026, 10:05 pm

I just tweeted this:

For those who missed yesterday, let me summarise events: the Tories attempts to trash the country continued, undisturbed by those of them who thought, very briefly, that they might have found a found a conscience.

if you want evidence, look to the front pages of the Mail and Express:

As I suggested would happen yesterday, the media led campaign to restore Johnson has already begun. Don't rule out that by next week he will be on the ballot to be Tory party leader again. It is technically possible. And fascists don't give up easily, especially when they have an utterly corrupt media behind them.

Meanwhile, Keir Starmer was at Wimbledon.