

Funding the Future

190,000

My Twitter account got its 190,000th follower sometime this morning:

That is 10,000 new followers in 18 days.

And for the cynics, why does this matter? It's because this blog is about changing the world for the better in the interests of those less well-off. The more people are interested, the more likely it is that might happen. That's why it matters.
