

An update on the glossary

When I wrote about the glossary last week I thought it was largely done, barring some accounting issues that I knew were missing.

I added most of those missing entries late last week, adding almost 5,000 words to its length. Then I did a 'gap analysis', thinking about what was missing. I now have another 150 entries to write until we get to 'zero bound', which is currently the last planned entry. So those who have volunteered may not be called upon just yet. And you now know what I am doing this week.
