I often talk about the far right, because I think it exists, that real people and far too many politicians are part of it, and it is very dangerous to the well-being of most people in this country.

It is good then to note that I am not alone in thinking that is the case. This ten-minute report from Lewis Goodall, once of Newsnight, now of The News Agents, is well worth watching, albeit that it is a difficult and disturbing report:
