

A morning person

Published: January 13, 2026, 6:10 pm

I was amused to be told yesterday by a regular commentator on the blog that if I have not posted by 8 in the morning he is hitting the refresh button on his browser and wondering when I am going to get on with it.

So, this is a second for this morning, just to keep the early birds happy.

And my reaction to being told this? I rather thought it was the case. It's a good job I am usually reading the morning's news whilst thinking about the posts I might write within two minutes of waking in the morning. The first post is often out before I even get to a coffee.

It's a good job that I am a morning person.