

Bob Dylan spoke too soon: the time's they aren't a chan...

Published: January 14, 2026, 8:29 am

This is from the front page of the Telegraph this morning:

The Sunday Telegraph SUNDAY NEWSPAPER OF THE YEAR

DeSantis: I support Badenoch in her war on wokery

UK is my second home, says White House hopeful in exclusive Telegraph interview

By Allison Heath and Tony Dovis

RON DESANTIS has been here four times since becoming US president, including twice in the last month, and he is not the only foreigner to be visiting Britain recently as he declared the UK to be his second home.

The Florida governor praised the Queen's speech, which he said was "brilliant", and the Queen, who has been in the UK for the last two weeks, has been welcomed by the US president and his wife, who have been staying at the Queen's residence at Balmoral.

He has been here twice in the last month, and he is not the only foreigner to be visiting Britain recently as he declared the UK to be his second home.

He has been here twice in the last month, and he is not the only foreigner to be visiting Britain recently as he declared the UK to be his second home.

Pledge allegiance to the King from your sofa

So there we have someone who very obviously wishes to be prime minister of the UK being endorsed by someone who very obviously wishes to be president of the USA for being three things:

- * Pro-racist.
- * Anti-minority interests.
- * Pro-inequality.

And we have the Telegraph applauding this.

In the 30s, British newspapers applauded anti-semitism and those politicians who promoted it here and abroad.

This is a different time and thankfully most have moved on from anti-semitism.

The papers just attack people for their race, sexual orientation and their relative economic status now.

That's not very different.

In the 60s Bib Dylan said the times, they were a changin'. I think he spoke too soon.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=90WD_ats6eE