

TLDR

For those not familiar with the term 'TLDR' it stands for 'too long, didn't read'.

This was the subject of discussion over dinner in the Murphy household last night, but my wife and our sons agreed I did not need to write TLDR summaries for my blogs because they would all say:

- 1) The Tories have done something awful.
- 2) People will suffer as a result.
- 3) This is wholly unnecessary.
- 4) Something could be done about it.
- 5) Labour won't do whatever that something is.
- 6) We need electoral reform / a Green New Deal / monetary reform / tax reform / a new fiscal policy to address this.
- 7) Against all the odds I live in hope.

As the saying goes, 'With friends like them....'

And for the record, and not just to spite my family, I am not planning TLDRs.
