

Funding the Future

It's time the king gave up his royal exemptions from U...

Published: January 13, 2026, 3:36 pm

My friend, Clive Lewis MP, has a petition on the Action Network today, which he explains as follows:

Rule out royal exemptions

Target: King Charles

Our monarchy has exempted itself from 160 laws since 1967. Laws ranging from animal welfare to workers rights.

The exemptions include most of the taxes we all have to pay. Taxes on a family worth billions while three million children, their subjects, live in poverty.

Now we have an opportunity to change that. Ask King Charles to rule out any further royal exemptions.

SPONSORED BY

 Clive Lewis

The letter he is asking people to endorse is as follows (and as you can see, I have done that):

To: King Charles
From: Richard Murphy

Since 1967 the monarchy has exempted itself from 160 laws. From animal welfare to workers rights and tax exemptions.

Will you commit to the call for change and rule out any further royal exemptions.

Sincerely,

I am not much into clicktivism these days, but I think this is good work by Clive and is worth supporting because it makes a simple demand of the new king, which I suspect many here would agree with.

You can sign on here.